HIS YOUTH. From his sixteenth year, until he may ied, in his twenty-sixth, Walter Scott pent most of his legure hours in wander ing through the romantic scences familiar to him in his childhood, and visiting most of the places in his native land memor able in history, song, or legend. He con-tinued to collect the relics of ancien petry, which he regarded so highly, and is means then being limited, and chiefly levoted to the purchase of old books, he was content to live in his wandering, through the country, in a homely manner among the pessantry—particularly during his annual visits to Luddesdale, a pustoral district, with remains of the castles of the old border chiefs, and many stories about them. There were no inns and few roads in the district, but a great deal of hospi-tality. Scottmade himself at home among the simple inhabitants, who knew little of the outer world, and were charmed with his genial manners and familiar anecdotes Years afterward, when he was a renowned author, and, what they thought much higher of, Sheriff of the County of Seikirk, one of his former companions said: "He spoke to every one as if he were one of his family. There may have been the pride of candescension in this; but that species of pride is somtimes akin after virtue.

Summer Letters-No. 3. BT. LAWRENCE HALL, MONTREAL, August 11th, 1871.

It is now some time since I wrote you concerning the whereabouts of our party. Tuesday, August let, will long be remembered by those who for the first time descended the rapids of the St. Lawrence. Shortly after the boat leaves Ogdensburgh the shores contract, and the current nonsequently becomes swifter, and the steam. er enters a small rapid called Rapid do Plat. It is, however, only a swift current. and the water does not break into foam. Several expressions of disappointment were heard at the insignificance of these themselves safe on shore before the day was ended. They wanted more excitement, and they soon got it. The good steamer held steadily on her way, sweeping past oultivated farms and green islands covered with birch and elm, About 2 p.m. there was a great commetion so among the passengers. We were anproaching the first real rapid—the farfarmed Long Sault. The river here is diyided by an island, having a north and south channel, down which the water rushes at the rate of 18 miles an hour.

In the war between the French and English for the supremacy on the American continent a tragic event took place at this point. A French schooner, heavily laden with valuable fore, was pursued by an Ecglish bost. Down through the thousand English had almost overtaken their enemy. The Rapid Du Plat was passed in safety for permission to erect frame building, to and the pilot knew not of the danger be-basements of the buildings. Boiler Explosions.

AN EXTRAORDINARY THEORY.

If the explosion of the boiler on board the ill-fated steamer Westfield has caused a great deal of misery, it has also elicited wounded. some of the most extraordinary theories relating to boiler explosions which have ever been laid before the public. We have already expressed an opinion in reference to the cause of the Westfield explosion, and the official evidence published since that time, simply corroborates our theory upon the subject. The following, taken from the New York Tribune, is one of the most extraordinary of the theories advanced, which, if it were founded in of Captain Murray, the owner of the fact, would create a most profound sensa- Chantauqua, were of a fatal character, but Remedy has won to put up and offer for sale. rapide from some who devoutly wished tion among the general public, and es- we trust that such is not the case. When the buildings had partially fallen many explosions occurred among the ruins, creating such consternation among the firemen that they refused to approach the building again and try to stop the spread of the flames. These explosions caused considerable speculation among scientific men And so much interest was taken in the subject by the public that the City Council of Philadelphia was induced to offer a large reward for the solution of the mys-stery. Dr. Jentz made many experiment glian boat. Down through the thousand with saltpetre and water at first, with-islands the exciting chase continued, antil out success. The hydrogen of the steam unites with the excess of carbon which is liberated from the oil, forming new bydro-carbon, and the oxygen also takes up part of the carbon, and forms carbonic said and carbonic oxide. These twenty years the old Indian has taken outed people, and when Dr. Jentz asserts that the simple exturation of rusty or oxydized from with oil will, when beated to the point of decomposition, produce an explosion, he makes an assertion which very few who know anything about such

Let tell it in Mr. Lockhart's own simple and pathetic words; and the morning of Monday, the 17th of Soptember, Nicolson came into my room, and told me that his master had awoke in a state of composure and constitueness, and wished to see me immediately. I found him entirely, him-self, though in the last extreme of feeble Risks Taken and Policies Issued Has eye was clear and calm—ever of the wild fire of deliraum extin ts; and both reached Abbotsford on the 19th. About 13 pm. on the 21st of Sep-tember, Sir Walter Scott breathed his last in the presence of all his children." It was tiful day—so warm that every win low was wide open; and so perfectly still that the sound of all others most delicious that the sound of an others most quantum to his ear, the gentle ripple of the Tweed over its pebbles was distinctly audible as we knelt around the bed, and his eldest on kussed and closed his eyes."-The funeral took place on the 26th of prember, and though intended by the hearse, and from the hearse to the grave in D.yburgh Abbey. The pall was borne by his two sons, his son-in-law, and his litgrandson, also ny six cousine, and Hugh ott, of Harden, abial of his family. Prayers were offered up in the house, be-ore the coffin was removed, by two min sters of the Presbyterian Church. From rly matthood Six Walter was a member the Episcopal Aughean Church; and its fine berial-service was read over him s grave by his friend Archdescon Wil Sir Walter's mortal remains were de-posited by the side of his wife, in the lady-aisle, in the north transcept of the andy-aisis, in the north transcept or the old Abbey of Dryburgh, on Tweed-side This particular space, which had been the burial place of the Scote of Haliburton in by-gone days, had been presented to Sir Walter by the eccentric Earl of Buchan, wner of the rains. There is no solemn monument, neithe "storied urn or ornamental bust," over Sir Wester's grave in Dryburgh. A solid oblong block of Aberdeen grante, shaped af ter a design by Chantrey, the soulptor, covers his remains, and bears the simple
